Dear Potential Corporate Member

The chief purpose of The Robertson County History Museum is to collect and preserve items of historical importance to Robertson County, Tennessee. Other objectives are to provide educational and entertaining exhibits, programs, and activities for its citizens of all ages, to provide a learning center on Robertson County History for students in area schools; to provide a source for research in cooperation with Stokes Brown Public Library, Robertson County Archives, Robertson County Court House and Springfield City Hall; and to provide an outlet for publications of the Robertson County Historical Society.

In 2023, The Robertson County History Museum will outline its 3-year vision, the most ambitious and impacting vision since its opening. You as potential corporate members are a critical part in helping these plans come to life – plans to not only improve the museum experience for our visitors, but to bring history into the community while supporting the local economy. The plans are great, but with your support, it is possible.

In the following pages, you'll find details on each of these projects and how they will impact Robertson County.

Will you join the Robertson County Historical Society in helping these projects come to life? Your support of the museum translates into the support of Robertson County and helps bring our history here in the county to life.

Thank you for your consideration to support The Robertson County Historical Society in these unique, unprecedented endeavors. We look forward to talking with you more about these projects and how you can get involved.
